AutoCAD 2018 is the first version of AutoCAD to support the new Autodesk Subscription program. Subscription is Autodesk's new paid licensing model for AutoCAD, replacing the old, less flexible traditional model of perpetual licensing. With the new model, AutoCAD 2018 users are now billed on an annual subscription basis rather than on a per-license fee. This has dramatically changed the way software costs are structured, as opposed to the old model, which was analogous to buying software outright. AutoCAD 2018 is a complete revamp of the current AutoCAD version. This comprehensive update will enable customers to benefit from many of the latest enhancements and new features available. To illustrate the difference between previous versions of AutoCAD and AutoCAD 2018, here is a

Limitations AutoCAD is not a good user interface when compared to other CAD programs, like the Revit or SketchUp. AutoCAD does not have a "perspective" view nor a "tiled" view as Sketchup does. AutoCAD does not support animation, as the design intent of the program is for creating drawings or drawings in a fixed state.

Quantitative and qualitative assessment of the need of a new trial for combination therapy in patients with hepatocellular carcinoma in Europe. The use of combination therapy in patients with hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) can benefit from an assessment of the relative benefit in terms of survival rate and the risk of toxicity. Quantitative meta-analyses of results from randomised controlled trials (RCT) have shown that this type of treatment should be used in patients with very early disease stages and can be repeated until progression occurs. This paper presents the first comprehensive meta-analysis of the relative benefit of combination therapy in patients with HCC based on results from RCT in Europe. A meta-analysis of combination treatment compared to mono-therapy was performed. There were 76 RCTs in the meta-analysis with a total of 7269 patients. There was a significant benefit in the short-term, that is, from the first trial to disease progression. Only in the long-term did the two treatments become statistically equivalent. The increase in risk of toxicity due to combination therapy was not a limiting factor for the use of this treatment in clinical practice. In patients with early stage HCC, combination therapy was associated with a significant benefit in short-term and equivalent treatment in the long-term.[Does Caesarean section affect perinatal mortality? A prospective study in routine clinical obstetrics practice]. To assess whether the number of perinatal deaths in cesarean section (C-section) is correlated with the number of cesarean sections per delivery, to assess whether a selection of women with "high risk" deliveries to C-section might decrease perinatal mortality.
