Dale & Clem are goofy brothers that love video games, animals and the good life. The dream of most every youngster is to be knighted (or at least become a knight) and live in a castle. One day, after a chance encounter in the park, their wish is granted when Dale ends up in a video game. Fortunately, that video game is medieval fantasy! But after a first adventure that ends in a bit of a disaster, Dale & Clem find themselves in an endless quest to recover all the stolen items from the castle. Their quest will take them to peoples that they have never met before. All these new people will be participating in a dice game called Flailure, which will force them to work with each other to solve puzzles and defeat a new group of baddies, in order to collect all the items. If you like the idea of building friendships while playing, defending your castle from goblins, and feeling badass while doing it, then you're in for a treat. For more information, or if you'd like to be a beta tester, please contact www.fourquest.org About the authors Good games and fun become even better when they're built by friends. Who would you rather play your favorite videogame with: a good friend or an internet stranger? Neither? You should play Flailure! Four Quest Inc is a game company whose primary goal is to make fun, collaborative experiences for people of all ages. We believe that players should be able to enjoy playing games with people they know, rather than having to play them with Internet strangers. Flailure is the first of our game series, and is designed to reinforce both friendship and the joy of playing videogames with your friends.

What's new:

, Art, Gadgets, Fun & Games! The aim is to display naval action material, but with a wider appeal. Hence the mix of "naval" related flags, articles and games. All are browser friendly and viewable on the ABC (Australian Broadcasting Commission) web site. We're all about casual hobby based on a love of the sea and naval past. The Seven Seas Fleet (2007) I am a severe storm aficionado to the extent that photos and videos taken (for the most part) from my own decks often amuse and delight my friends. They even become aware that they have to watch out for me due to the injuries I may inflict (often making the stories funnier because one is unaware of the enormity of my size). I can look at some things with a completely untroubled expression, others make me laugh - often hard and often long. So, as a result, I have taken to writing (in my "day job"), video editing (as a hobby) and film making (as a hobby or a passion). I have made three short films to date. The other videos are listed on my videos page. The third (and current) edition of The Seven Seas Fleet was not a tough test as far as producing it was concerned. It is no different to what I used in the previous two. The whole organisation was streamlined and I did not need to send my crew off and go it alone. Hence the high confidence level within the crew as everything ran smoothly (for the most part) and we did not want for much as far as travel, accommodation and food was concerned. And there were a few bits of equipment that did not survive the weekend, but that's all part of the adventure. This edition features the crews of Jack & Alan (see below) and also of Captain Ben, whilst highlighting the work of fellow seagoing friends. There are images taken between Sydney and Melbourne (and the Caribbean and the South Pacific) in the weeks prior to the actual racing. Many thanks to the crew in the following shots and those not already listed. It is a quiet, measured and sedate voyage of exploration, developed to be a revisit to the waters of the Southern Ocean. Jack's Log: The reprise of last year's Northern Passage expedition is a result of a requirement by some of my travelling companions to revisit the Southern Ocean on the way home to Christmas Island (and thus Australia). Accordingly, last

* "Memory" mobile game is an exercise that changes the single game genre. * Not a 2D puzzle game. * Story that combines real world and virtual world. * I want to show that there is a way to connect the past and the future. * I want to show that there is a way to connect the past and the future. All of the characters in this game are composites of real people (such as me), and therefore the events of the story may be interpreted differently from the actual event. All of the characters in this game are composites of real people (such as me), and therefore the events of the story may be interpreted differently from the actual event. History The automatic memory. For the sake of clarification of the slave labor system created by the human management company called Life, the SLEAGUE is created. In order to improve the efficiency, Life develops an AI robot, the Memory, with the mind of the human. The AI robot Memory is given to the military company that works as a slave labor. (I guess this would be the same situation as in the movie Her.) Memory's memories are erased by an unknown cause, and she can only remember the experience of her last mission as a slave. Programmed with the memory code of humans, the SLEAGUE and Memory, whose only purpose is to be a slave labor, can be forgiven for a life of slavery. On the other hand, the veteran employee Dr. Peace, who is given the Memory to serve as his assistant, fights his way to free the Memory and SLEAGUE. The Memory and SLEAGUE then discover their true nature as humans and try to be free, causing all sorts of trouble to the system. Memory and SLEAGUE have been living in the memory vault since then. Memories The AI-like Memory is able to solve puzzles. Memory has no reason to love or hate, and lives in a world where each day is like a blank slate. She is dependent on the time-space continuum. Preface Although the AI Memory is not a perfect imitation of human intelligence, her working method is based on humans' genetic structure, the most common sense of the culture and environment. Because her sense of self is not very developed, she cannot work in a society that does not have time.
