Photo by I. Lens Photoshop CS3 is the latest version of Photoshop and includes many cool new features and improvements. It is a great upgrade over older versions of Photoshop. If you're a digital photographer, you will want to check out all the new features in Photoshop CS3 and start using them immediately. Note: Photoshop CS3 is a licensing upgrade from previous versions of Photoshop and is not an upgrade from previous versions of Adobe Creative Suite, which includes several other photo-editing and design programs. For more information about Photoshop CS3, refer to the Photoshop CS3 release notes. Here are some tips for learning Photoshop CS3 to get you started: 1. Learn the basics. There are a few concepts that you need to learn before using Photoshop CS3. You may have learned many of them from previous versions of Photoshop, but they are worth repeating in case you missed them. Adjustment Layers. An adjustment layer lets you mask certain parts of an image with a selection and apply an adjustment to the original areas of your image that do not have a selection active. Photoshop's new adjustment layers are a great way to create great masking-style layers that let you easily change the settings of certain parts of an image. Layer Masks. Layers are the basic building blocks of Photoshop. If you work with graphics, layers are among the most valuable tools available. Layers are the base for both the creative and editing process. In Photoshop CS3, you get 12 new Photoshop layers: Black & White, Color, Gradient, Linear, Patterns, Screen, Shadow, Sketch, Sketch Oil Paint, Soft Brush, Soft Light, and Watercolor. Photoshop's new layers give you flexibility to do more using your images. Layer Comps. A layer comp is a collection of layers. It is a sort of shortcut for making the same changes to many layers at once. You can then adjust the settings that you applied to all the layers, and your changes will be reflected in all the layers at once. Toolbars and Photoshop's New Features. Most new Photoshop features can be found in one of four toolbars. The top tool bar, the new toolbox, displays all the tools available in the program. The Alignment and Distortion toolbars. The left tool bar, the Alignment toolbar, and the right tool bar, the Distortion toolbar, provide easy access to all of Photoshop's geometric correction tools.

Q: Prove that the intersection of all subset of a topology that contains a point is exactly the point. I know that there is something very elementary I am missing. I've already checked the definition of topology and in the first part I've shown it is an axiom. So all the subset I've shown is open, closed, or empty. My question is how do I know that any subset of a point? Can't we say that a set is a subset of the empty set? How do I know that the intersection of every subset of a point is the point itself? A: The proof can be started as follows: 1) The intersection of every family of subsets is a subset. 2) Any subset of the topology  $\mathcal{T}$  at  $a$  in  $X$  is a family of subsets of  $X$ . Therefore, the intersection of every subset of  $\mathcal{T}$  at  $a$  is an element of  $\mathcal{T}$ . This element is precisely  $a$ . Structural and kinetic properties of the nicotinamide cofactor of the ADP-ribosyl cyclase of Bordetella pertussis. The nicotinamide cofactor of the ADP-ribosyl cyclase of Bordetella pertussis (ATP-ribosyl cyclase) was found to consist of the coenzyme nucleoside 5'-methylthioadenosine linked to nicotinamide via an alkyl chain with a long fatty acyl side-chain. The enzyme inhibited by NAD(P)H had a  $K_m$  of 0.3 mM, corresponding to a  $V_{max}$  of 250  $\mu\text{mol cyclized ADP-ribose min}^{-1} \text{mg}^{-1}$  and a concentration of inhibitor in excess of the  $K_m$  of 3 mM. The low  $K_m$  was unaffected by 0.2 mM ATP and was reduced by 2 mM ADP and 2 mM GTP, but ADP-ribose itself was a noncompetitive inhibitor, and GDP and GDP-mannose were only partially inhibitory. The fatty acyl side-chain at the nicotinamide terminus was essential for enzyme activity, and short- and long-chain alkylnicotinamides had comparable  $K_m$ 's. The enzyme contained in the order of 50  $\mu\text{mol NAD-ADP-ribose min}^{-1} \text{mg}^{-1}$  and 0.5  $\text{mmol NAD-ADP-ribose}$

Q: jQuery - Is there a way to find out what file was requested on a jQuery AJAX request I'm using the .ajax() function to make a jQuery AJAX request, but I'm trying to figure out how the request was made. Is there a way for me to find out what file was requested? I'm using jQuery, which means it's in the responseText. Basically, I'm trying to figure out the path of the file being requested... A: The .ajax() function returns a jqXHR object, on which you can call the .url() function. var request = $.ajax('/some/url'); var url = request.url(); console.log('Request URL: '+ url); jqXHR is a similar object to a native XMLHttpRequest, so its .url() function will generally give you what you need. You can also call the constructor for the XMLHttpRequest directly if you need. For older versions of jQuery, this functionality was available on the $.ajaxSettings object, which is removed in the current version. For those versions, or when you need this feature, you can construct your own ajax() method by defining a custom jQuery.ajaxSettings object. A: You can also use the .createAjaxSettings method to set the url parameter, which is what you're after. For example, if you'd like to know the url of the first request, you'd do something like this: $.ajax({ url:'some/url', type: 'get', success: function(data) { var request = $.ajaxSettings.createAjaxSettings('none','some/other/url'); request.url = 'some/url'; request.type = 'get'; request.data = data; } }); This creates a settings object that has no url, and the same url as the first request. Then you can set the url and type of request being made. There are some caveats: This method will check the global $.ajaxSettings object, so this won't be a good solution if you don't have access to the ajaxSettings object. This method only works when you're making an
