.Network mask In computer networking, a network mask is the smallest number in a bit field of two or more contiguous bytes that, if set to all-zero bits, is guaranteed to result in the remaining area being a valid IP address. A network mask of all zeros results in all hosts on the local network being unable to resolve the hostname of a remote computer. It is most commonly used to allow the local network to connect to the Internet via a router/firewall with a single subnet, without being able to see the rest of the network. The same applies to an IP address with only the initial one or two high order bytes set to 1. This type of addressing is used for "narrow" or "partial" subnet. A wide subnet has more contiguous bytes (bits) set to 1. In the same manner, a partial subnet has fewer contiguous 1 bits set. For example, if the IP address is 10.0.0.0, the network mask of 10.0.0.0 will result in only 10.0.0.0—the host with the IP address of 10.0.0.0 can see only the hosts with IP addresses from 10.0.0.0 to 10.0.0.255, no other hosts on the network can be resolved. Notation The most common notation for the network mask is a single octet with all bits set to 1. This is equivalent to 255.255.255.0. In most common implementations of the Internet Protocol, network masks of all zeros and all ones are interpreted differently. If the network mask is all zero, all hosts in the local subnet will not be able to resolve the hostname of a host with a non-zero IP address. In contrast, if the network mask is all ones, all hosts in the local subnet will be able to resolve any non-local IP addresses. I have 1.5 and 1.3 and both work but I can no longer connect to Geocaching.com or any caches either on G1 or G2 or on the mobile site on iPhone 3g. I know I have the correct geocaching.com key as my other phones do connect to the Geocaching.com and will send the right key. I tried doing "connect to server" and it says "Can't open log file". Then tried to open Geocaching.com and it goes to the main screen. I have a 1.5 g1 with maxsea 3.0.1 and a 1.3 g1 with 2.1.1 and all other phones are working fine. I have tried all geocaching.com cache addresses. I need my geocaching.com account to start caching. Do you think I have a bad serial? Is that something I can go to Maxsea.com to fix?
